

JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Positions: Associate and Assistant Professors of Health Policy and Economics

Organization: China Center for Health Development Studies (CCHDS), Peking University, Beijing, China

The China Center for Health Development Studies (CCHDS) at Peking University seeks to hire several assistant and associate professors of health policy and economics. Peking University established the CCHDS in April 2010, with the mission to advance health development and health care system performance in China and globally, through academic excellence in research, education and training in health policy and systems studies. To achieve its mission, CCHDS is building a world-class multidisciplinary group of faculty, fellows, and students. More information on the mission, goals, research priorities and organization of the CCHDS can be found on: www.cchds.pku.edu.cn

Qualifications

The successful candidate(s) are expected to play a core role in advancing the Centre's research priorities in health transitions, determinants of health, and health system research. Academic ranks will be determined in accordance with the candidate's qualifications and experience.

Candidates must hold a doctoral degree in economics with an area of specialization in one or more of the following: health economics, applied microeconomics/econometrics, industrial organization, behavioral economics, development economics or evaluation science. Prior research experience related to health policy and health care systems in China and other low- or middle-income countries is highly desirable. Excellent written and spoken English skills are required.

Salary

For the Associate Professor level, payment including basic salary and subsidies will be in the range of 200,000 - 300,000 RMB per annum depending on experience and qualifications.

Assistant Professors will be paid a fixed package of 100,000-150,000 RMB annually.
